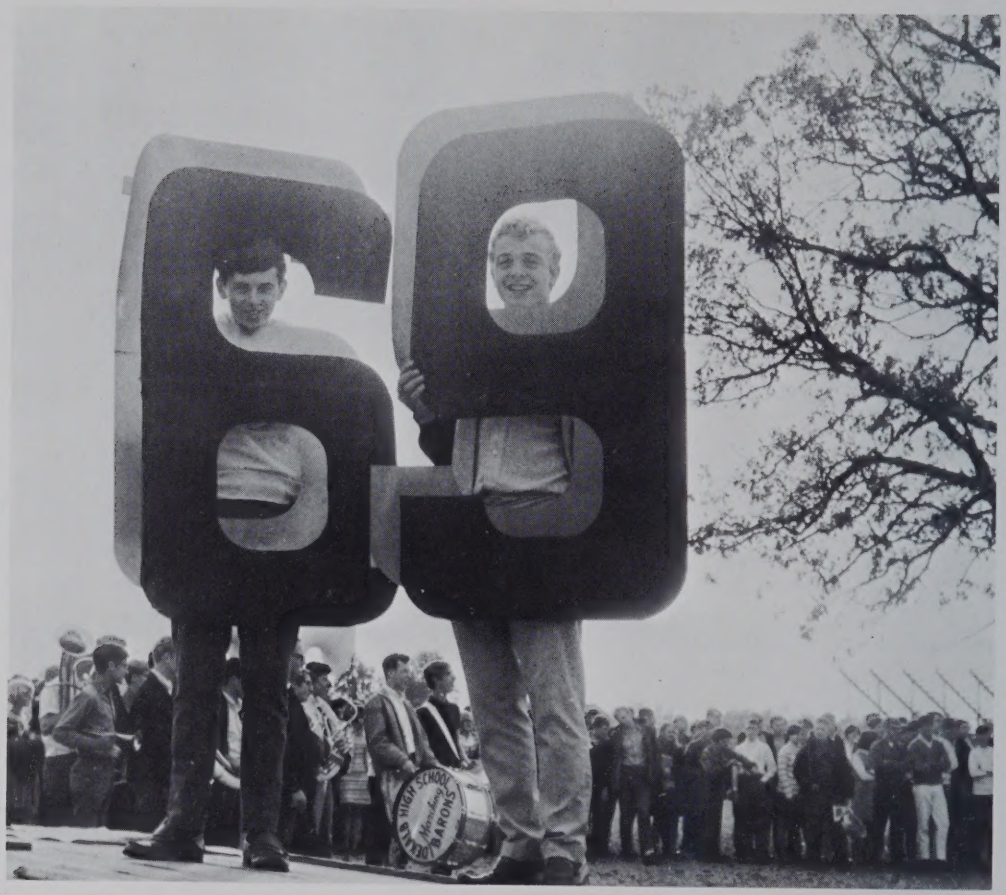
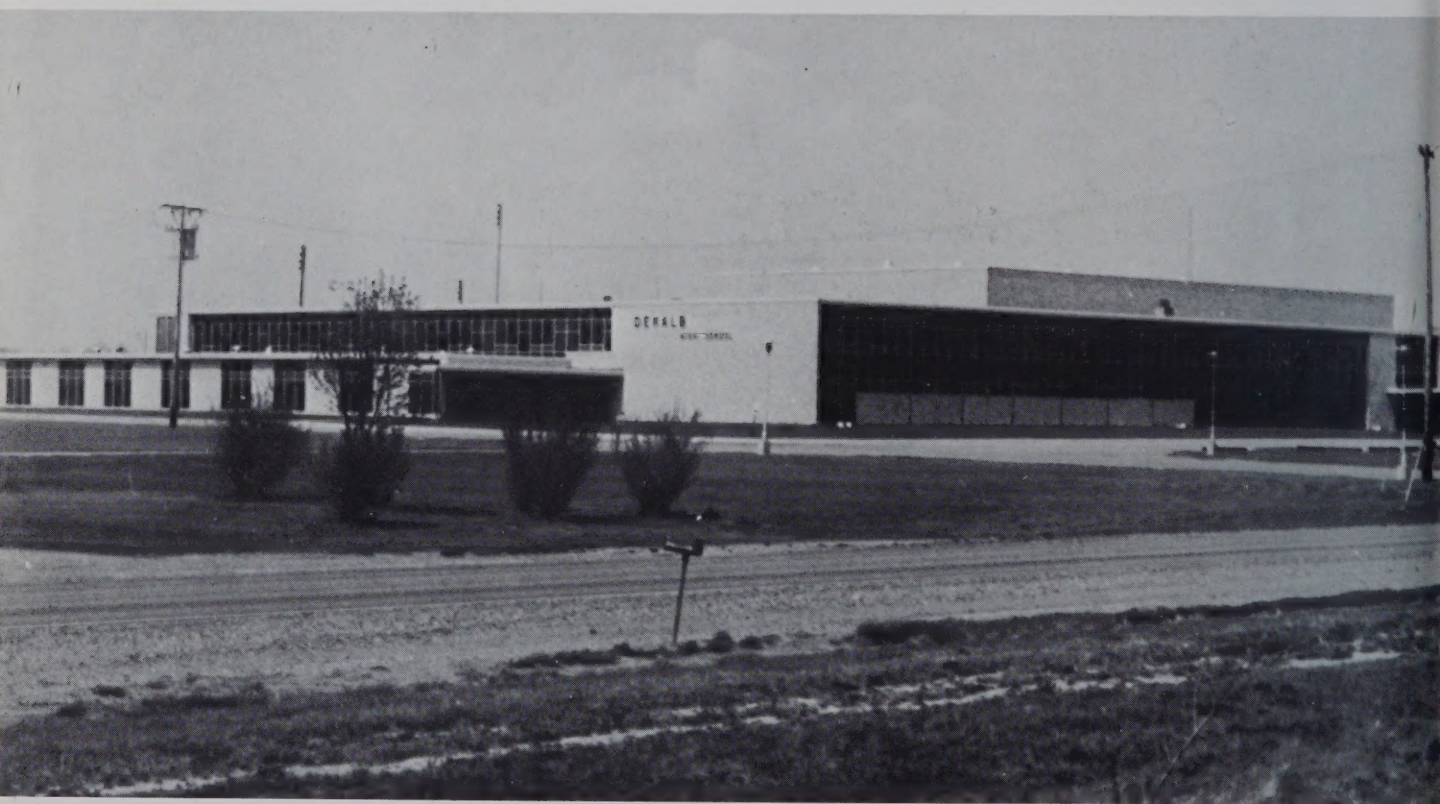
DeKalb High School
Waterloo, Indiana
Volume 2



At a Baron pep session before the Garrett football game, the class of '69 displays their spirit!

DeKalb High, "Home of the Barons," gained recognition this year through the efforts of the student body.



1969 . . . A Very Good Year

Nineteen hundred and sixty-nine was a year with a unique personality. Aroused by the desire to reach new heights, individuals set their goals. While striving to meet their personal goals, students realized that much could be gained by working toward a common cause. Since DeKalb High School was just in the second year, students had the opportunity to make their school renowned. Through unity, Barons achieved this goal. "The Home of the Barons" soon became well-known.

In the realm of sports, the Barons were recognized as N.E.I.C. winners, sectional champions, victors in countless track events, outstanding baseball players, and rapidly advancing competitors in the minor sports. Academically, the curriculum was more widespread and advanced than any other school in the area. Organizations prospered with many individuals participating in group efforts.

It was evident that Baron students were proud of their school, and they displayed this pride through their involvement and enthusiastic support. Nineteen sixty-nine offered countless opportunities and holds endless memories. In 1969, the DeKalb Barons did achieve their goals, making it truly . . . "a very good year."

Laurey attempts to explain to the girls her feelings about Curly by singing "Out of My Dreams".

Ann McIntosh, Sue Brown, and Beth Brewer were a part of the stage band, which provided music for Oklahoma.

Gains Fame for DHS

Peddler Ali Hakim has a yen for women; even Laurey, who is spoken for, excites his fancy.

Will has "gone about as fer as he can go" in tempting his beloved Ado Annie to say "yes" and marry him.

Saber Record Hop Brings Spirited Barons Alive

Jim McIntyre looks on as Deb Ritenour demonstrates a wild dance step.

Seniors Tom Lepley and Cheryl Korff dance to the beat of a very popular DeKalb High School combo.

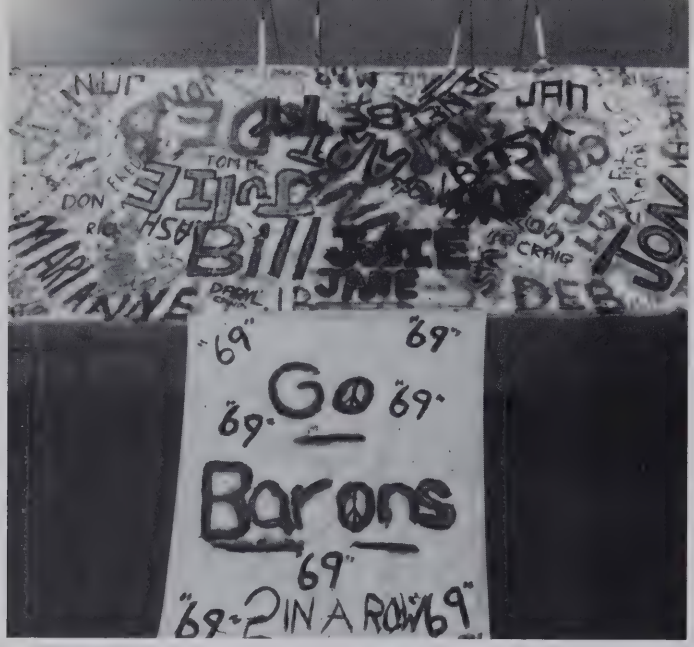
Doug Wills takes advantage of a slower pace to demonstrate his dancing ability.

Senior Joni Albright finds time to listen to Junior Jack Jones as he expounds on a variety of topics.

Enthralled freshmen find DeKalb record hops entertaining as they sway to the rhythm of the vibrating music.

Theresa Parker displays a jubilant smile at the sight of the Saber's profit.

Spirit Motivates



As sectional time draws near, seniors use their sign-making talent to create this masterpiece.

This hilarious skit, performed at a pep session by the junior boys, was effective in boosting spirit.

Dressed in "clash-day best," two juniors wear the coveted "I have poor taste" awards.

Loyal fans sit through many tense moments, always anticipating another Baron Victory.

With a challenge and a cheer, the Pep Club proclaims to all, "Beware! This is Baron Country!"

Loyal Barons

Jane Pfefferkorn takes an active part in convincing Coach Bourquin that DeKalb is overflowing with spirit.

Cindy Lockwood discovers that Baron booster buttons are in such demand that they sell themselves.

Senior girls show the Barons they "care" by dribbling basketballs to the sectional.

Freshmen are anxious to show that the Class of '72 says, "Go ye Barons, we're backing you."

The competitive homeroom decorating contest proved to all, "We're the Barons, couldn't be prouder!"

Christmas, 'Tis the Season to Be Jolly

In an old-fashioned family sing-in, The Swing Choir entertains by singing yuletide carols.

The Teen Folk, Paul Stepp, Beth Brewer, and Sam Wiley, provided seasonal folk songs at the Christmas program.

The guitars of Ann Duncan and Sharon Brace add a mellow background to the angelic voices.

A captivated audience listens as Mrs. Hansen directs the A Capella Choir in many inspiring hymns.

Snowflake Fantasy; Winter Enchantment

Linda Berryhill and Vickie Knott smile at the thought of attending the Christmas Formal, December 23, 1968.

Jill Bruce displays her artistic talent as the Tri-Hi-Y decorates for the evening dance.

"Up, up with people" was the chanting theme brought to the student body by "Sing-Out America."

Pep, Politics, and

After a victorious season, Coach Platt proudly presents awards to football lettermen.

Juniors express deep sincerity while being inducted into the National Honor Society.

Underclassmen laugh at their peers who presented a skit at a regular pep session.

Patriotism Title Assemblies

Students gain knowledge of politics as candidates present their views.

Holiday melodies were presented by several DeKalb choirs during the Thanksgiving and Christmas programs.

ACADEMICS

Relaxation is the combined comforts of a soft easy chair, a quiet place, and the daily newspaper.

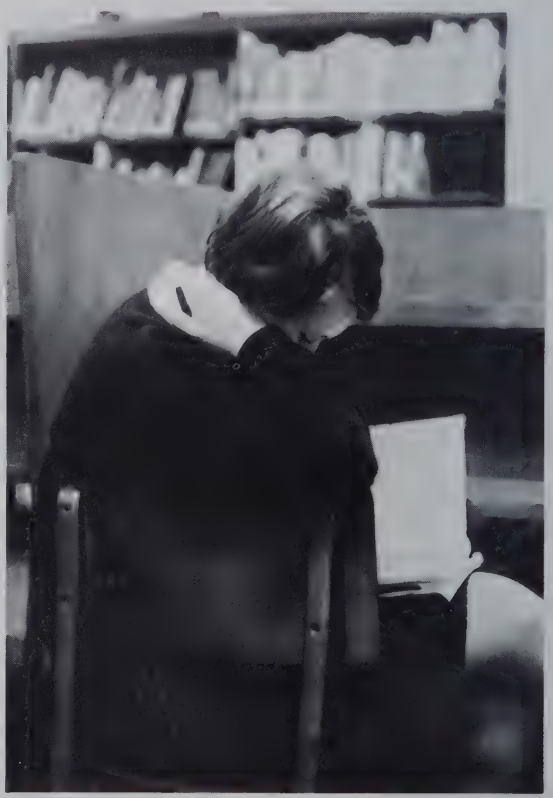
Studying: Mind Ex

It is ten o'clock, Sunday evening. The T.V. is blaring in the living room, the radio is booming in the kitchen. Next to a pile of freshly opened books sits a dish of popcorn and a bottle of cola. The scene is complete and the student begins to study.

But not always. Oftentimes students prefer the quiet of the library with its abundance of research material. Students also utilize free time in class to finish assignments. Whether it be in the classroom, the library, or the study hall, most students at DeKalb prefer to study at school, leaving the evenings free for other activities.

At the bookstore, Marcia Overmyer finds time to study during the lull between rush periods.

Theresa Parker assumes a thoughtful pose as she regards a difficult passage.

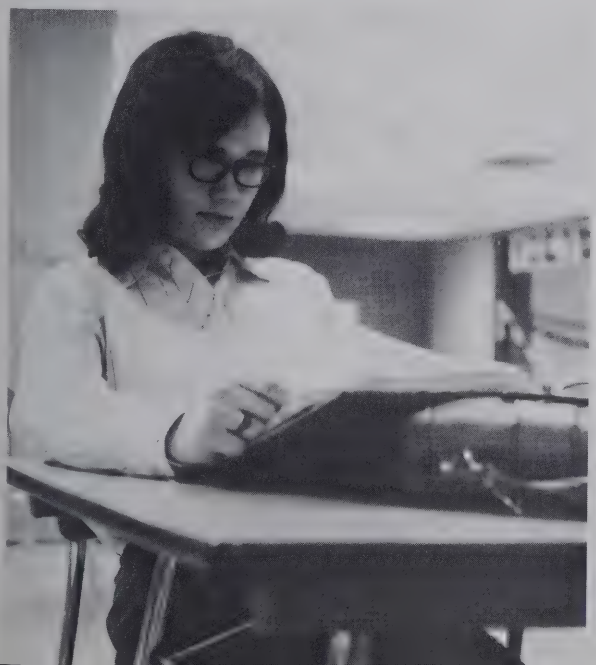


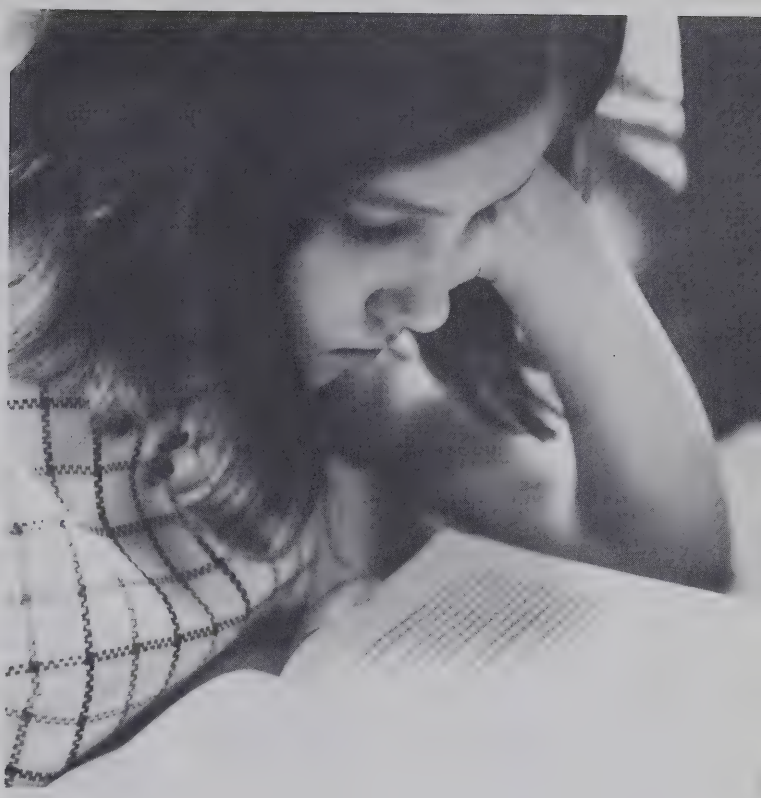
DeKalb guys discover that the Commons, with its informal atmosphere, is an ideal place to work on assignments.

anding Necessity

Various pieces of art, such as this geometric one, decorate the library bookcases.

Propping up her book for easy reading, Sharon Metcalf settles back for a long hour of study.





Karen Squier focuses her attention on another page of a novel that is captivating even though it is required.

Spanish students use free time in class to do some required reading in the Spanish classic, Don Quixote.

Individualism

Vonda Myers and Susan Dreyer were two of the many freshmen who wrote and produced their own play.

The purpose of the English Department is to help students acquire skill in expressing themselves through the spoken and written word. Aside from the regular English courses, which provide basic knowledge in communications, the department has branched out into several specialized areas of study. The drama of the stage, the suspense of a debate, the excitement of news coverage, the haunting beauty of the written thoughts of men past and present, literature from all over the world, and the challenge of self-expression through composition are only a few of the fascinating areas of study available to the student.

Underclassmen spent much time in the reading lab trying to improve their speed and comprehension.

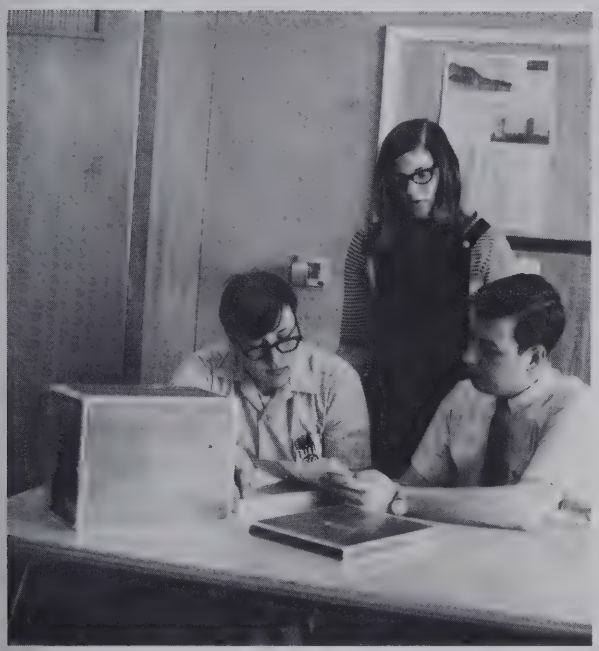
in Expression



Individualized English was a new and exciting experience for Ron Strahm and Sandy Collins.

Learning About People . . . When, Where, Why, and How

The mock election in the fall put the Social Studies Department in the limelight. Organized by the government classes, this election made DeKalb students more aware of privileges and responsibilities in our democracy. Seniors also formulated imitation stock markets through which they studied several problems in the American economy. Underclassmen spent many hours reviewing the essential knowledge presented in United States and World History. Helpful hints to understanding themselves and others were obtained from useful theories offered in Psychology and Sociology. The ability to read maps and charts was obtained while studying natural resources and terrains. This wide variety of classes made it a very good year for group study, field trips, and panel discussions.

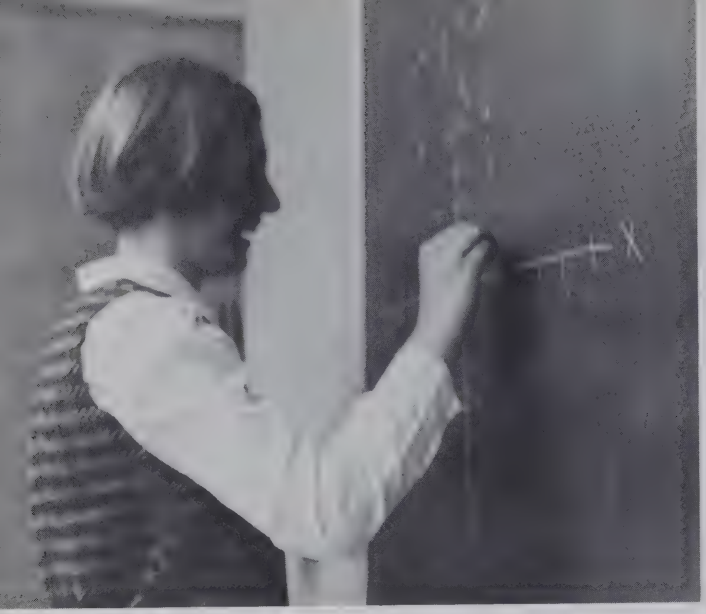
Ideas are stimulated through group discussions, such as the one these history students are participating in.

Many emotions are evident on the faces of these seniors as the last minute test results are announced.

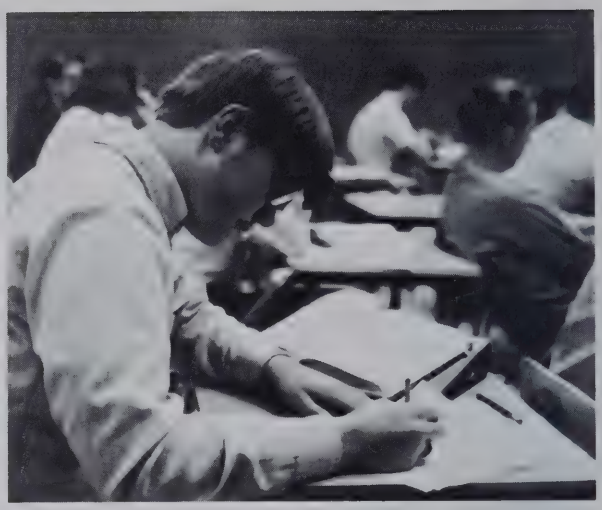
Senior Sue Randa helps register students for the mock election sponsored by the government classes.

About to open his government book, Roy Charleswood's attention is diverted by the photographer.

Seniors assume a comfortable position as they prepare to listen to an important lecture.



Karen Knott attempts to graph a linear equation.



Bert VanDercar busily scribbles some notes that he hopes will help him solve the next problem.

Mathematics: Maze of Numbers

From the Arabic number system, man has advanced to computers, symbols of our highly technological age. To keep pace with the fast-moving times, it is necessary that a student have a firm knowledge of basic mathematic principles and the skill to apply them to everyday situations. By guiding students through what seems to be a confusing maze of equations, theorems, and logarithms, the Mathematics Department's goal is to teach the students methods of transforming mathematic principles into their numerical equivalents. Courses offered include those in practical mathematics, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry.

Jim Tilghman uses a compass to determine the solution of a geometry problem.

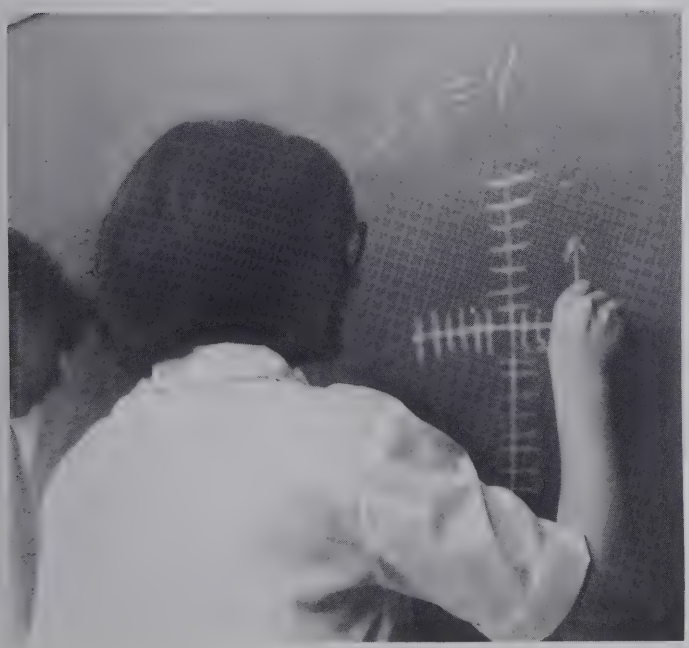
With a yardstick in one hand and a piece of chalk in the other, a math student begins to bisect an angle.

An algebra class listens intently as the teacher explains another mathematical principle.

After going through the process of solving an equation, Dick McGrew is about to arrive at an answer.

Pat Cornelius finds that bisecting an obtuse angle is much more difficult to do at the board.

Wanda Buckmaster uses the simple X and Y axis that she has drawn to plot the points of an algebraic equation.



For Strong Bodies

A jump ball is about to be called in this girls' basketball game during freshman phys. ed.

During warm spring weather, the guys strive for perfection in form over the high jump.

Calisthenics precede special gym activities and keep the girls limber and physically fit.

With the help of Nancy Haiflich, Miss Dunn demonstrates good posture to the sophomore health class.

and Strong Minds

When physical education classes are in session, the gym and surrounding halls echo with the sounds of physical exertion as Barons strenuously work to keep physically fit. The energy released in these classes takes many forms: calisthenics, gymnastic exercises, sports such as volleyball and basketball, and shower room antics.

But far from being just fun and games, physical education provides instruction designed to increase the students' skill in performing many activities.

Physical education is required for freshmen and sophomores, with the addition of a health course during the sophomore year. Physical education is also offered to upperclassmen.

Careful aim and steadiness make Larry Norton's archery shot nearly perfect on the target.

The boys do jumping jacks outside. Many work for physical fitness awards, others for special sports, and some just for fun; however, they all contribute to an overall rounded education.

Students Master Homemaking Skills

Darlyn Moughler and student teacher Miss Rowe (right) examine a piece of printed cloth.

The hum of sewing machines, the smell of cookies baking, the sight of colorful material strewn about: all are examples of the sights, sounds, and aromas that permeate the Home Economics Department.

Dedicated to providing students with usable knowledge and skills in all phases of homemaking, challenging courses are offered that cover many fields—from foods and clothing to housing and family care.

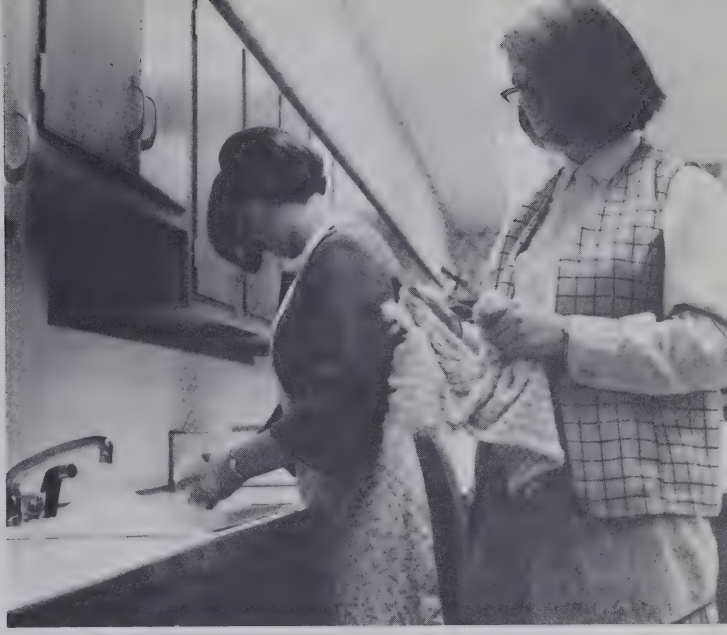
Also, it is not surprising to see a group of boys busily stirring fudge because courses are offered to the guys, too.

The homemade jelly smells so delicious that Terry Wattier cannot resist tasting it.

Ruby Bloomer and Marie Steury watch the delicious raspberry jelly "bubble" as it cooks.

These Home Economics students patiently wait to prepare the peach preserves.

Mary Cook curiously inspects the sizzling contents of her frying pan before returning it to the stove to finish cooking.



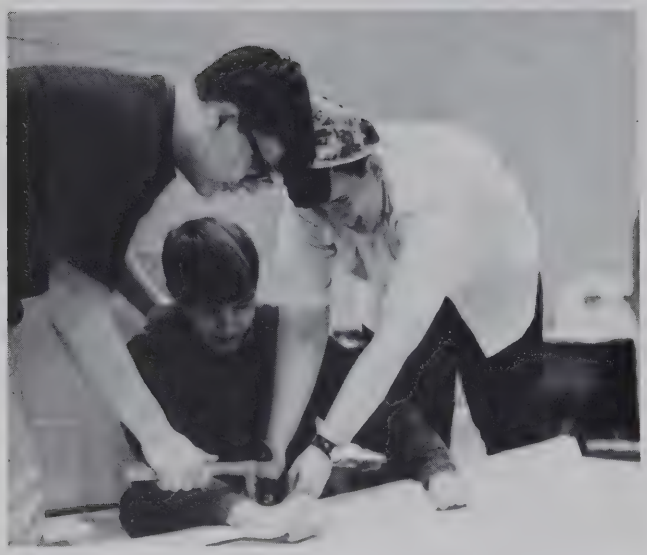
Nancy Guinther and Joyce Koch discover that after every good meal comes the chore of cleaning up.

Senior Chris Richardson focuses her attention on a small piece of delicate sewing.

Dorothy Wise carefully follows her recipe as she continues making an enticing dessert.

Cindy Woebbeking concentrates on the difficult task of threading the needle before using the machine.

Self-Expression Through Color,



Three guys apply their handy-man abilities while stretching and tacking canvas over a frame.

From the ancient cave drawing to contemporary abstract paintings, art remains one of man's oldest forms of self-expression.

Because "Art" is a broad term that includes many specialized media, a wide range of subjects are offered, designed to challenge each student's individual creativity. From working with metal and clay, to painting and photography, to weaving and sculpture, all of the courses give instructions on the styles and techniques of design, texture, and color.

Unity, and Design

Ann Duncan demonstrates to Debbie Badman a special embroidery stitch to highlight her design.

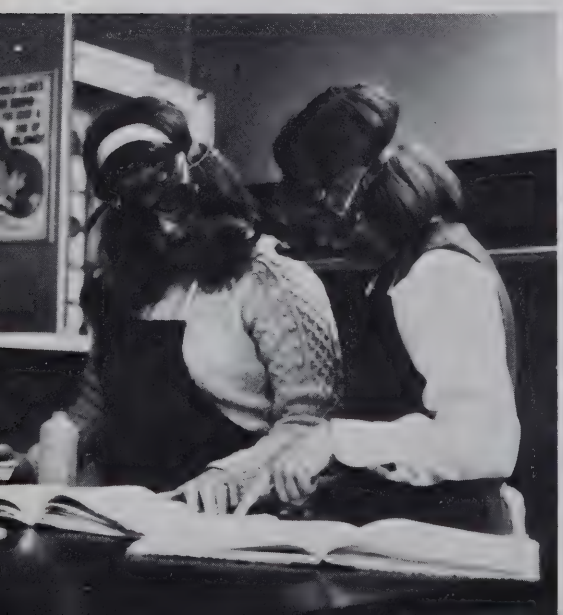
This lab team of freshmen boys gets a charge out of studying electricity.

Science Searches Into Tomorrow

The exact temperature is necessary in this lab.

The inventive variety of science courses gives Barons many opportunities to widen their horizons. Survey science which gives basics in theory and laboratory work is a "must" for freshmen. Biology gives students the knowledge of life processes in all organisms. Atoms, the construction of matter, and the analysis of compounds intrigues chemistry classes. Much lab work prompts the study of light, motion, and mechanics in physics. Advanced achievements in navigation are promoted in aerospace, just as advanced biology and chemistry students drill precision to perfection.

Examining their lab procedure are Leslie Eyler and Kaye Emerson.



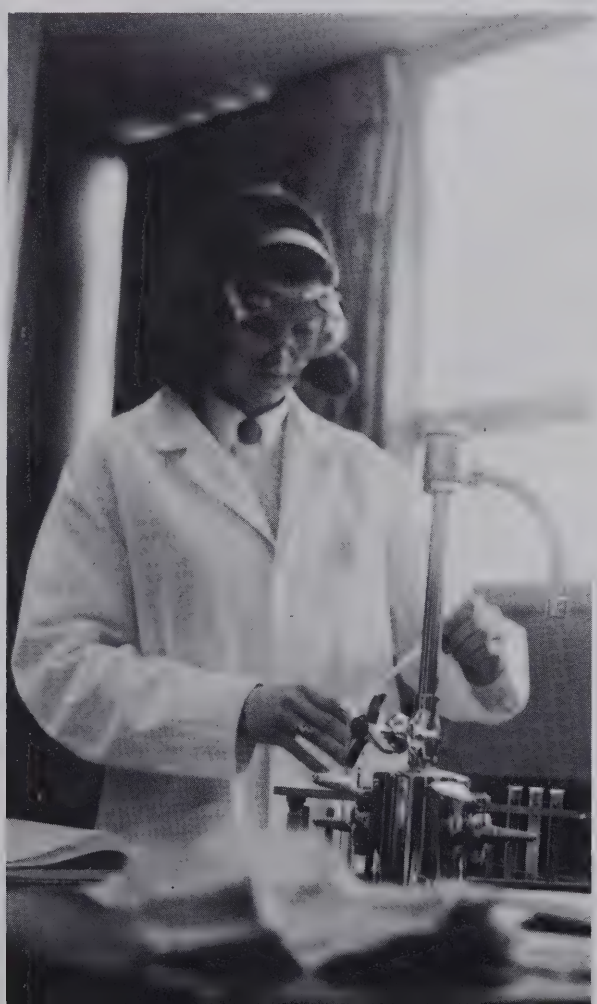
Susan DeWitt and Pam Bishop intensely view crystal forms under a magnifying stand in survey science.

Rita McBride uses the fine focus on her microscope to view a slide more clearly.

Ambitious science students spend many hours in the lecture room for combined group study.

Betsy Rodecap and Don Orwig find their chemistry experiment quite hilarious.

The contents of this test tube intrigue Janel Rogers into further investigation on the problem.



Learning Through

Two Ag. students practice what they have learned about cleaning and repairing expensive farm equipment.

A student works on a project for carpentry, one of the subjects covered in the curriculum.

Ralph Seiler and Jim Miller complete an assignment concerning the seed specimens before them.

Dorsey Brown, Kerry Heffley, and Doug Carnahan discuss the variation of crop production.

Practical Application

The courses offered by the agriculture department provide instruction for all phases of farming. Like many of the other departments, the Ag. Department has expanded into many areas of specialized study, offering courses that deal exclusively with farm management, machinery, marketing, conservation, livestock, and crops.

Two courses offered by the department, horticulture and landscaping, are of great interest even to the city dweller. The above two subjects, along with conservation, are offered to girls, too.

Agriculture students learn the necessity of keeping machines clean and in good running order.

Pounding a nail in straight can be a tricky business, so Terry Marker takes careful aim before letting go.

Tom Aschleman finds that the warm outdoors is an ideal place to work on a dirty lawnmower.

Ed Dollier performs the time-consuming process of sanding wood before and after each coat of varnish.

Swing Choir members strive for pitch and perfection.

Diane Derrow and Debbie Dales recite a contest duet.

A Very Good Year for Contests and Concerts

School programs fill the choir agenda.

Singing seems to motivate the thoughts of Hubert Shaffer and Sheila Hall.

Ted Richmond and Leland Harding harmonize with accompanist Cindy Scattergood.

Choir groups expand their talents during rehearsals.

Pride and Practice Lead to Performance

Gerald Wilhelm gives the rhythmic beat at summer practice.

The cornets rehearse their introductory fanfare.

Through study and continuous practice, musicians strive for perfection in interpreting complex rhythms, intricate harmonies, and dominant themes. The result is the transformation of notes and measures into expressive music.

New courses in the Music Department this year were Symphonic Band and A Capella Choir which gave advanced students opportunities to strengthen their individual talents. Concert Band and Girls' Glee Club also added challenge to participating students.

Debi Tuttle adds her part during band.

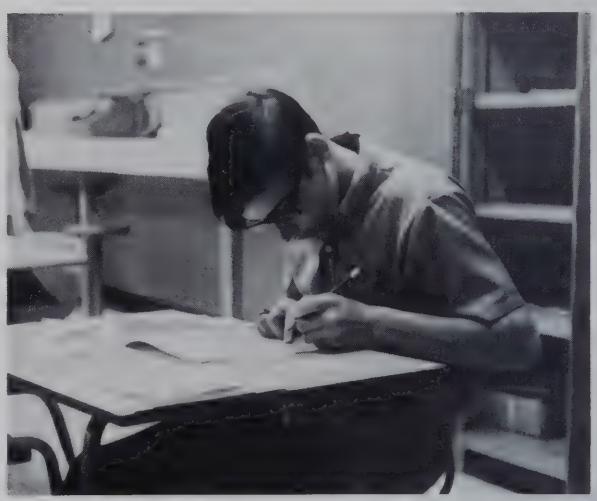
Band Director, Mr. Norris patiently instructs the pom-pom girls on marching skills.

Becky Leas diligently checks her figures a second time for accounting class.

Practical business letters are typed to perfection by this industrious steno lab girl.

Ken Akey brings his bookkeeping figures up-to-date and edits his book for a final balance.



The dictaphone, a new time-saving device, relays a letter to Diana Smith.

Bob Shuherk finds that often the keys just do not type what he punched.

Facts and figures can be puzzling as Debi Tuttle is finding out through practical experience.

Jill Bruce musters up all the skill possible for a timed writing in Typing II.

Practical Experience Through Business

The ancient businessman's equipment was simple: a balance scale and a stylus to write with. Wealthy ones employed a scribe to keep records and take dictation. But today the business world is more complex and diversified. Secretaries with typing skill and knowledge of shorthand and bookkeeping have replaced the ancient scribes.

The business department offers courses that teach the fundamentals of business activities, business law, and business mathematics. Other courses give instruction in business skills such as typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping. More advanced courses provide extensive training with business procedures and equipment such as calculators, duplicators, and adding machines.

Acting as the receptionist, Sandy Miser offers her service in steno lab.

Jeff Buschman pauses to proofread what his nimble fingers have produced.

Before attempting difficult projects, shop girls discuss their plans thoroughly.

Home arts courses prove to be profitable to the girls too. These senior girls illustrate their ability to operate the shop machines.

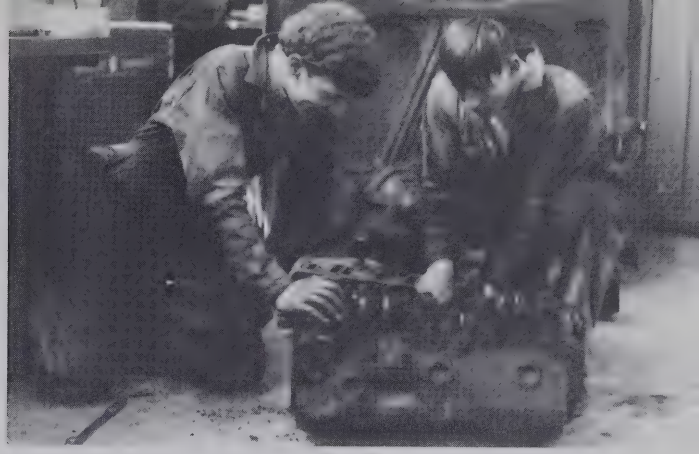
Students organize into groups and equally contribute to complete class assignments.

Talents Expand in Industrial Arts

The sight of electric and static sparks, the piercing whirr of power machinery, and the smell of freshly cut wood are examples of the sensory perceptions received in the Industrial Arts Department. Raw material, in the hands of the aspiring student, becomes an article of utility. Courses in woodworking, metal shop, and home arts for the girls increase the student's skill in working with his hands.

As the pencil moves across the graph paper, an object's dimensions are drawn in perspective. This skill is acquired through the instruction provided by courses in drafting. The department also offers courses in electricity and electronics.

Tom Smith (above) and Tim Rountree (below) gain experience and knowledge by working with shop equipment.



Auto mechanics seems to engulf the minds and hands of John Hoffelder and Kenny Ellert.

Woodworking students examine carefully the grain and quality of each portion of wood.

Steve Cougill tediously measures and calculates to correct his drafting angles.

Romantic Touch in Foreign Culture Studies

There is a romance and an originality in the cultures of others that is both fascinating and refreshing. From the Spanish bullfights to Paris avenues, from Latin's Rome to Germany's Rhine, a knowledge of a foreign language and the corresponding culture stimulates an appreciation for one's own, and increases an awareness of the people of the world. The Foreign Language Department is set up to provide the student with basic knowledge of the language of his choice, including Spanish, French, German, and Latin.

Orlie Brand and fellow German students concentrate on the taped language drills.

Sprawling, toga-clad Latin students re-enact the ancient Roman's pleasureful banquets.

Language students utilize facilities to improve skill in speaking, listening, reading, and writing.

Cheryl Korff passes out paper cups for refreshments.

Rewards of Teaching

A big red, juicy apple from an admiring youngster is only one of the many rewards for the teacher. Exploratory Teaching provides opportunity for the student to explore and become acquainted with the teaching profession.

Doug Karnes offers assistance to one of his pupils.

Sandi DeWitt gives instructions for using water colors.

United We Stand

"Ooh! Ungowa! Barons got the power!" The mighty Barons, coached by Mr. John Platt showed their power on the football field in '68. It was a very good year for the varsity football team, as they went all the way to win the N.E.I.C. title. The Barons had a 7—1—1 overall record and a 7—1 conference record.

Coach Platt was very proud of his Barons this season. They started the season with a victory over Bluffton, 13—12. The next game was with Angola, on our own field and this game ended in a tie, 14—14. The next two games were unquestionable victories for the Barons football squad against South Adams, 27—13, and Portland, 26—7. The

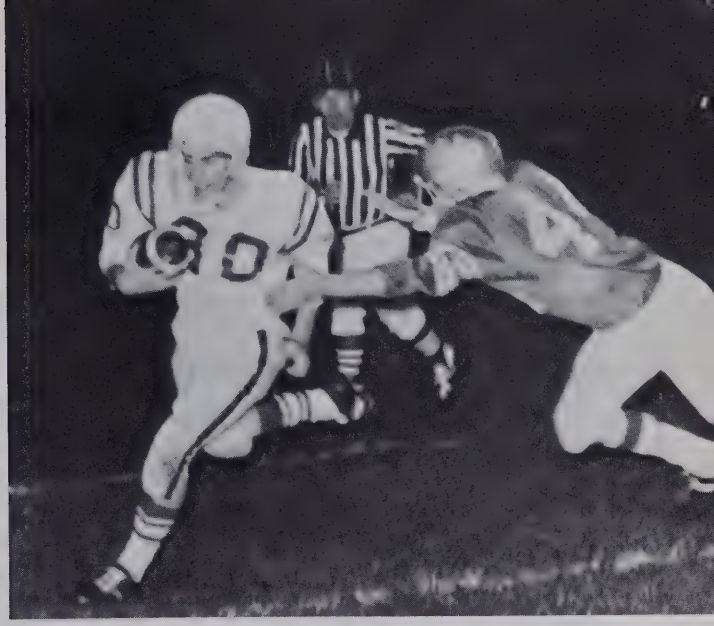
Divided We Fall

Columbia City game was an important game and proved a disappointment to the Barons. They lost, 0—26, and the Barons feared the conference title was lost. The Barons pulled through the next four games with victories, the best of these games being with Concordia as the Cadets were unable to score against the Mighty Barons. During our winning streak Columbia City managed to lose a game, giving us the conference title.

The Baron football team was hard to beat this year; and with many returning players and a lot of eager fans, we can keep our great title.

Frank Walter (23) gains yardage while dodging two opposing Railroaders to help win the game.



Lightning-fast Kirk Carpenter (30) works his way to the end zone for another touchdown.

"Golden Toe" Jones (83) makes another successful kick for the Barons during the Concordia game.

Baron Underclassmen To Help Build

Helping to build a strong varsity squad for the years to come are the nineteen hard-working reserve football Barons. The reserve team, always hoping to move up into next year's varsity line-up, has given DeKalb High School an impressive 4—1—1 record for the 1968 season. The highest score of the season came on the Barons home field when the team beat West Noble 39—0. Under the guidance of Coach Hillabrand the reserve gridders have learned many techniques that may help them climb the ladder of success in the field of football.

Compete in Football Their Futures

Freshman Barons, under the guidance of Coach Davy, began the season by defeating East Noble with an overwhelming victory of 25—0. The next two games of the season were not as successful. Garrett defeated the Barons and Columbia City rallied to tie the score 6—6. However, defeat did not discourage the Baron Freshmen. They concluded the season with another magnificent showing by putting down Angola, 25—0.

The twenty young gridders attained a successful season through their endeavors. These Freshmen were forever pressing forward to help reach their goal of becoming members of the varsity squad.

Cross Country Runs Hard for Victory

Coach Walton's cross country squad completed another season of hard work running against such teams as North Side, East Noble, and West Lafayette. No matter how rough the course seemed to be, our high-spirited runners always came through to the finish. The hard-working cindermen have again helped give DeKalb High School a spot on the sports map of Indiana. Cross Country meets are very exciting and Coach Walton urges more fans to attend and support our Barons.

Barons Stand Vi

Chesty Jack Jones pushes the basketball toward the basket, as his varsity teammates look on.

The Baron basketball team has once again made a name for themselves and a record for their school. Suffering a few losses at the beginning of the season, the powerful Barons whole-heartedly indulged in a winning streak.

DeKalb opened the season by trimming the Portland Panthers 54—53. The next two games, against Huntington and Central Catholic, were the thorns in the Baron's paws. Coming back strongly, the team trounced their strong rival Garrett, 59—57. The mighty Barons then proceeded to trample over their next four foes with the greatest of ease. Then as DeKalb marched to the Goshen tournament, they yielded to the potent Goshen Redskins. Getting back on the victory trend, the almighty Barons increased their speed as they ran into Concordia, Leo, and Albion, elbowing these enemies into tragic defeat. The next game of the season was a challenge to the daring Barons for the NEIC championship. DeKalb traveled to Bluffton to engage in a battle against the mighty Tigers, emerging victorious. Yet, the championship was not in the hands of the Barons. After Fort Wayne Snider and Fort Wayne North Side were pushed to the depths of defeat by the Barons, the team suffered a loss to the South Adams team. However, nothing, including a defeat, could discourage the ambitious DeKalb Barons. By defeating Columbia City, Lakeland, and Bellmont, the varsity of DeKalb High wrapped up their season with a 16—4 record, a very good accomplishment.

The powerful Barons then set pace toward the sectional. With high honor, the great basketball players received the sectional trophy for the second consecutive year, thanks to the beneficial guidance of Coach Bourquin. Our Barons deserve congratulations for a fine season and honorable basketball record, and for adding to the pride being built up in all DeKalb Barons.

Looking back to 1969, DeKalb's golf team was something to be proud of. Starting off the season on April 2, the Barons took a small four point loss from East Noble. Bouncing back, the team took Leo, Angola, Bishop Dwenger, and New Haven all down to the depths of defeat. Taking losses from Elmhurst, and Bellmont, the Barons then won a three way meet between Carroll and Lakeland. The Second Year Team Pushes Forward

A sport which is growing rapidly at DeKalb High School is tennis. The Baron tennis team consisted of fourteen boys who would play their hearts out if the sport called for such action. Winning only one of their nine matches did not disappoint them. Of the fourteen, only five will not be back next year. Playing such teams as Goshen, South Adams, Bluffton, and Huntington was truly a challenge for our Baron tennis players. To them we say "a job well done."

For the Baron baseball team of 1969, the phrase, "it was a very good year," just doesn't do the team justice. By romping over such teams as Lakeland with a 6—1 score, DeKalb rival Garrett with a 12—2 score and big Bluffton with a score of 12—3, the team gave the fans something to sit up and look at. Under the coaching of Roger Weimer and Bill Schlosser, the team completed a year of victory. For the Baron baseball team, it was an excellent year.

New Awareness Through Foreign Cultures

Fiestas, stately Roman banquets, and entertaining parties seem to suggest that eating is the best way to learn about foreign cultures. But the foreign language clubs also enjoyed guest speakers, pictures, and movies for the stimulation of interest in our neighbors. Even though most of the members admit that they are not bi-lingual, they do have fun trying to learn another language.

The Flying Beavers Club is the youngest organization of DeKalb; the group's charter was approved by the Student Council in the late fall. The club consists of students who are interested in both the building and flying aspects of model airplanes.

Display cases, informative movies, and airplane contests were some of the Flying Beavers projects during the year.

Flying Beaver members check on wind velocity and weather expectations before starting contest.

Y-Clubs Meet Goals

Seniors Steve Cougill and Pam Beaty move in rhythm to the beat of music provided at a "Y" record hop.

"Meet you at the Y" was a phrase very familiar to the ear at DeKalb this year. The Y clubs met on Tuesday nights for the purpose of creating a cleaner standard of living.

In '69 the Y-Teens sponsored the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance; together the Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y promoted the festive Christmas Formal. The Tri-Hi-Y also hoped to start a new tradition of service projects by joining the United Fund Drive.

Radio-TV Members Learn the Skills of Communication

The morning announcements were spiced up with the addition of new voices this year. The radio club members added this feature to their list of responsibilities.

The club also learned other aspects of radio production such as dramatics, special effects, newswriting, delivery, and technical facts. The members put this knowledge to work by producing the local Teen Topic program on WIFF.

Pep Club practices were the scene of both anticipation and hard work.

Baron's Baron's battle-cry! VICTORY! This yell produced large volumes of spirit many times in the '68-'69 Pep Club. This group of 160 girls proved to be the core of school spirit.

The Pep Club financed fan buses, created the homeroom decorating contest, and practiced hours learning new songs and motions. The club was proud to back the Barons during the impressive 19—5 season.

Dramatics Present a Broad Range of Productions

Not all the work that went into our dramatic productions involved acting. There were props to be found, scenery to be painted, plays to be advertised, and costumes to be created.

The Drama Club members assumed these responsibilities and helped to make the musicals and plays very successful. The members developed not only stagecraft skills, but also learned to appreciate the American and World Theater.

The progress of a play is being studied by Laurie King and Mr. Record while (below) Mrs. Moore's drama class performs a one-act play for enjoyment.

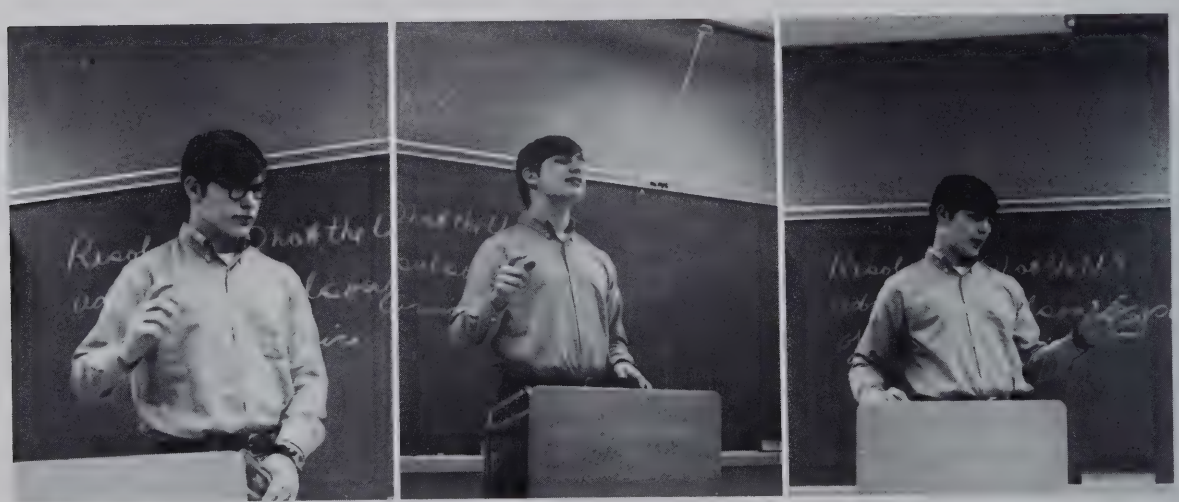
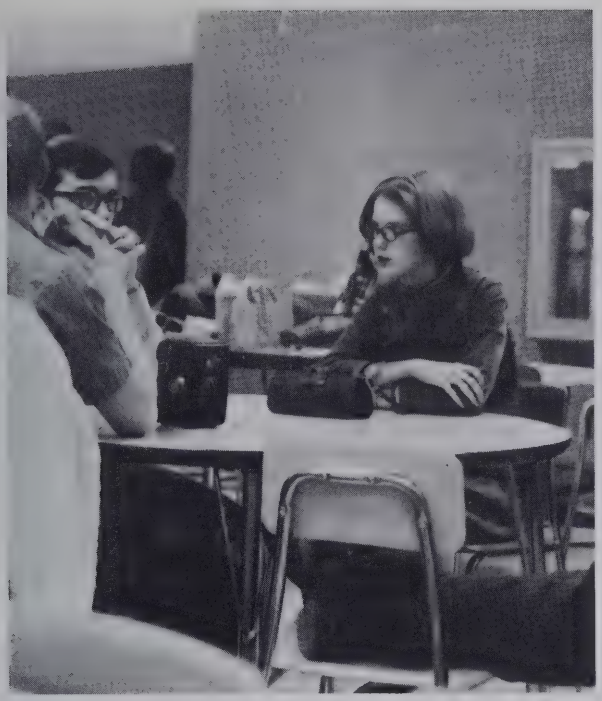
Forensic Leaguers Debate New Topics

Mr. Record shares some debate pointers with several members of the Forensic League.

Forensic League is a contemporary, active form of debate club. Its members not only promote but participate in both inter- and intra-scholastic debates, oratory and public speaking. Throughout the year, league debaters attended Ball State and Purdue for conferences and contests.

Famous junior orator, Jeff Turner, debates earth-shattering issues.





Thespians Mary Ann Beuret, Donn Starkey, and Doug Wills listen intently to the plans being made for the all-school play.

Thespians Encourage the Dramatic Arts

Glaring stage lights, grease makeup, and the thrill of the spotlight hold a special fascination for dramatists of the Thespian Society.

Goals of the troupe include: advancement of dramatic standards, attainment of a better mastery of language, and appreciation of dramatic literature techniques.

The company organized a field trip to PIT Theater at the Indiana University Extension, established a Student Speakers Bureau, and produced a one-act play.

The Future Teachers began the year by organizing the first after-game dance. The results were very successful and this set the pace for the entire year.

Many interesting guest speakers were heard, then questioned enthusiastically by the active members. The programs never lacked originality and always benefited the future teachers. The motto "learn through doing" was achieved by the efforts of the cadet teachers.

Student Librarians Police Study Zone

Contrary to popular belief, student librarians are not mean ogres who reprimand students who whisper. They are normal girls who devote an hour a day to helping students find extra materials.

Because the Materials Center has expanded to include filmstrips, tapes and records, besides the traditional books and magazines, librarians are kept twice as busy. In addition to the filing, repairing and checking out of material, our librarians do an outstanding job of preparing eye-catching bulletin boards and displays.

The complicated job of placing jackets on books' covers is demonstrated by Carol Sowle in the backroom.

Introducing: The Marching Barons

Uniformed in red, black, and white, our 150 Marching Barons stepped, danced, and played their way to entertaining pre-game and half-time shows at home football games.

The Majorettes in their flashy uniforms added zest with original routines and dance steps.

The drum roll sounded, the trumpets blared and the batons flashed as the Marching Barons introduced another year of football half-time shows and entertainment.

The Barons, 150 strong with the addition of the Baronettes, proudly represented DeKalb at the Auburn Fair. The two bands performed a wide assortment of marches, concertos, and pop selections at the concerts and state contests.

Melody and Harmony Reign in DeKalb Choirs

The A Cappella Choir is boarding the bus for a taping session at Fort Wayne WKJG. Jo Ellen Carnahan and Jane Sponhower (right) release some of their built-up tension by practicing their music.

The Vocal Department was changed from last year by dividing the singers into different choirs. The A Cappella members were auditioned and chosen to represent all DeKalb choirs.

The choir went on a field trip to Concordia College, and TV station WKJG for a taping session. This was in addition to the regularly scheduled concerts and contests.

Mrs. Hansen directs a practice session in preparation for the spring concert.

A vivacious junior, Emily Shook, enjoys any hobby in which she can talk, yell, or sing.

Red velvet dresses, blazers, and a set of drums give the Swing Choir a distinctive look of its own. The group specializes in music with a beat, both new and old. The vocalists show their enthusiasm by clapping, dancing, or using other animations with the songs.

The choir as a whole was rated superior at contest. Many smaller ensembles were also rated very high.

A special number is being rehearsed above while (below) class time is utilized by enthusiastic members.

Members of the Swing Choir spent hours practicing with Mrs. Hansen for programs and concerts.

These Freshmen Choir members enjoy spending time to develop talent.

Participation and practice were stressed as choir members attended class.

Dressed in gray robes trimmed in maroon, the Freshmen Choir added their interpretation of music to school concerts and programs. The choir also combined with other choral groups to perform at Baccalaureate.

Our Administrators Direct DHS Growth

D.H.S. enjoyed its second prosperous year through the capable hands of the administration. Mr. King, our principal, is ever willing to listen to and promote new ideas for the betterment of D.H.S. Mr. Fites, our new assistant principal, worked hard to promote unity among students and administration. He has done a remarkable job and has justly earned the respect of all. Students rarely come in direct contact with the superintendent, staff, and school board; therefore, we wish to recognize these men for their outstanding efforts in striving to offer the highest standards of education to D.H.S. students.

Students Benefit by Valuable Services

Here at DeKalb High School, we are fortunate in that we can benefit daily from the services of our competent personnel. The office secretaries are busy aiding both the students and the faculty. Students carry hundreds of questions and problems to the main office every day. The secretaries in the guidance office and the library are always willing to advise needy students. All the while, our custodians make a constant effort to maintain the facilities here in our beautiful building.

One of the very first responsibilities of the class of '72 was to elect the following class officers: Linda Yoder, Secretary; Bill Wible, President; Brad Miller, Vice President; and Doug Sowle, Treasurer.

What is the class of '72? The class of '72 is freshmen—but more than that. They are 354 students, all individuals, but all with one thing in common—SPIRIT! During the homeroom decorating contest at Sectional time, they showed the school that they believed in Baron Power. Freshman homerooms were overflowing with banners, signs, and streamers.

Freshmen contributed to the good life at D.H.S. in other ways. Individuals competed in sports, marched in band formations, sang in the freshman choir, and joined clubs.

Happiness is being a sophomore. And with good reason, too. The sophomores are in the unique position of being in the middle. They have a year of high school experiences behind them and are aware of what is expected. They have made mistakes, but they still have time to correct them. They have the opportunity to re-evaluate and change the goals they have set for themselves.

The Class of '71 can remember the past and use it as a guide while standing on the threshold of the future. Both are at their fingertips. What more could they want?

The class of '71 was expertly guided under the leadership of Tim Schmidt, President; Ron Pitzer, Vice President; Cindy Lockwood, Secretary; and Terry Rainier, Treasurer.

Juniors Accept Rights, Rewards, and

Bright shiny rings sparkled on junior fingers. Bright shiny smiles lit the junior faces who beckoned fair-goers into the Junior Booth to purchase a chance on the TV raffle.

However, rings and fun things, like prom planning, were not the only activities which captured the attention of the juniors. Academic-minded class members sweated out the National Merit Test in November and the SAT Test in May.

The Class of '70, led by Kim Charleston, President; Jim Conrad, Vice President; Cathie Johnson, Treasurer; and Judy Dunn, Secretary; anticipates a busy year.

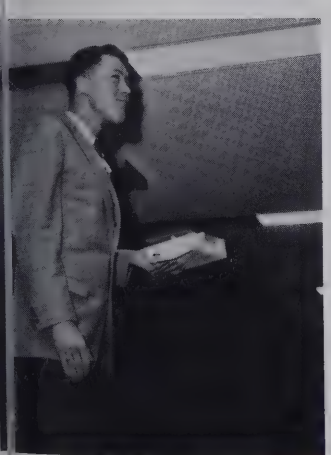
"Mr. Baron Spirit for 1969," alias Anthony Ranney, has been more than willing to share his time and talents to better the Baron cause.



One of the Barons' most valuable men, Jeff Turner, hurriedly charts the evening's statistics.

Susan Reed conscientiously pursues her lessons in preparation for her college years ahead.

a very good year for . . .

SENIORS

Dreams of Today . . .

The school year began. It rolled in and enveloped the Class of '69 with a pride—a pride which stemmed from just being a senior.

With the changing of the leaves, into dazzling hues, so changed the juniors into seniors, jostling with vitality and spirit. As winter whitewashed the countryside, the seniors drifted and melted in the daily routine of study and discovery. As the bleak winter months gave way to spring, everything was bursting with life. The seniors were no exception. Each realized that time was quickly passing, and most made the best of remaining weeks.

As the seasons come and go, so do the graduating classes. Each class has its own special events and memories. Sixty-nine was special—yes—and indeed, to the seniors, it was a very good year.

DeKalb Welcomes AFS Student—Pirjo

Nineteen sixty-nine was a very good year —and Pirjo Uosukainen helped make it that way. Our exchange student was from Finland but the year she spent here proved that she was as American as all of us. As a pom-pom girl and an active member of Pep Club, she displayed a spirit that could not be topped. Her high scholastic achievements were something of which the senior class could be proud. And her cheerful personality and warm smile invaded all of our hearts. The short time that Pirjo was with us will never be forgotten.

Pirjo adopted Mr. and Mrs. Oren Grandstaff, Kyleen and Kris, as her American family.

Mr. King explains Pirjo's schedule.

Mr. Norris illustrates a new step for pom-pom girl, Pirjo.

American brother, Kevin Grandstaff, escorts Pirjo to a military ball.

Pirjo displays the traditional costume of her native country, Finland.

A member of the pep block, Pirjo anxiously awaits the beginning of a game.

The Saber staff extends to you

A hearty thanks for all you do:

From Jim Arthur's advice on how to work,

To Kelso Davis's duty he would never shirk,

For thousands of prints he made right away;

And too, Mr. Love's patience day after day.

To Barons who backed the staff of Sixty-Nine,

We appreciate the effort that was mighty fine.

To you and many more, it's clear;

You made for us: "a very good year."
